Todrick Hall is a singer, songwriter, dancer, actor, choreographer, costume designer, playwright and director. In 2010, Hall first rose to fame as a semi-finalist on the ninth season of American Idol. He then focused his talent on creating his own content on YouTube. His videos of flash mobs set to songs by Ariana Grande and Beyoncé became viral video sensations. Hall has since amassed nearly 3 million YouTube subscribers and an astounding 513 million YouTube views. He eventually choreographed for Beyoncé, and won the 2016 Streamy Award for Breakthrough Artist of the Year.

In 2014, Todrick Hall was named one of Forbes' "30 Under 30 to Watch in Hollywood & Entertainment." He also starred in his self-titled MTV show, TODRICK, which he wrote and directed. The docu-series showed fans a behind the scenes look at Hall and his creative team as they choreographed and staged elaborate performance videos. He has written and directed commercials for Fiat and theme songs for Sesame Street. Additionally, he wrote and performed in the Virgin Airlines Safety Video. He has also been a judge and choreographer for RuPaul's Drag Race.

Hall starred on Broadway in the Grammy & Tony Award-winning musical Kinky Boots. He was also part of the Tony Award-winning musical Memphis, and prior to that he took the stage alongside Fantasia Barrino in The Color Purple.

Todrick Hall returned to Broadway this winter and is currently starring in the Grammy & Tony Award-winning musical CHICAGO. The film Behind The Curtain: Todrick Hall, an inspiring documentary that shows the hard work and creative power of this multi-talented artist, was also just released.
